On this question every salmon > canner in the United States would be with the doctor. Perhaps his reverence has invested in some joint stock concern that is pushing the fish business. But we must take his statements as to the great value of the phosphorus in fish to the human brain with some considerable degree of allowance. A youth once wrote to Mark Twain, when he was in charge of the so-called humor department of an extinct magazine, asking if there was anything in this theory of phosphorus and, if so, what he would advise him to eat.

> The reply of the humorist was that a few whale might cover his case.
> If the doctor is right, and if to attain old age and magnificent physical and mental condition it is but necessary to recur to a diet of fish and parched corn, let him explain to us if he can why it is that those people who are obliged practically to live upon fish—the Indians, who had their abode along the Columbian river, the natives of Greenland, who found nearly all their food in the waters—have not made more of a figure in the world, have not become essary to recur to a diet of fish and figure in the world, have not become its conquerors? A phosphorus-eating people, according to the doctor's dictum, ought to be the very flower of the human family. Dickens once instanced the value of the ancient maxim that early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise, by claiming that chimney sweeps, a necessity of whose occupation it was to be early to bed and to rise early, had acquired such fund of health, such stores of wealth and wisdom, as made them the greatest men in the kingdom.-Chicago

Washington's Awful Dignity

President Washington went to the sessions of Congress in a splendid coach, formed like a hemisphere, with gilt panels on which were carved cupids, flowers and fruits. This gorgeous vehicle was drawn by six cream colored horses superbly caparisoned, and supplemented by a coachman and two footmen in white and scarlet livery. The spectacle drew crowds to the street whenever the President passed. On the occasion of receptions President and Mrs. Washington, (she was called "His Eminence's Consort") sat on a raised platform like a throne and in a stately way received the salaams of the people. The only man who ever attempt-Washington was Gouverneur Morand mildly said: "Well, general. years of age. The conclusion of you are looking very well to-night.

Preventing Future Misery.

If there is, in this vale of tears, a more prolific source of misery than the rheumatic twinge, we have yet to hear of it. People are born with a tendency to rheumatism, just as they are with one to consumption or to scrofula. Slight causes may to consumption or to scrofula. Slight causes may develop this. As soon as the agonizing complaint manifests itself, recourse should be had to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which checks its further inroads and banishes the rheumatic poison from the system. This statement tallies exactly with the testimony of physicians who have employed this sine blood depurent in their private practice. There is also the amplest professional and general testimony as to the efficacy of the Bitters for malaria, liver complaint, constipation, indigestion, kidney trouble, nervousness and loss of appetite and first, After a wetting, whether followed by a cold or now, the Bitters is useful as a preventive of the initial attack of rheumstism.
